[Dkt. No. 82.]

23 On August 26, 2016, Plaintiffs filed an ex parte motion to deny or continue the 24 hearing date on Schwab Defendants'<sup>1</sup> motion for summary judgment which is currently 25 set for September 30, 2016. (Dkt. No. 82.) An opposition was filed on August 31, 26

27 <sup>1</sup>Schwab Defendants include S. Schwab Company, Inc., RL Childrenswear
28 Company, LLC, Sylvia Company, LLC, CUNY Associates, LLC, LM Services, LLC,
Tadd Schwab, Samuel Schwab, Douglas Schwab, and Amy Owens ("Schwab Defendants").

1 2016. (Dkt. No. 87.) Without leave of Court, Plaintiffs filed a reply on September 1,
2 2006. (Dkt. No. 88.)

3 Background

4 On January 30, 2005, Jesus Romero, a minor at the time, suffered severe burns
5 to his body when a shirt allegedly purchased at Macy's caught fire after being exposed 6 to a flame. Jesus claims that this shirt was defective because it was not 100% cotton as 7 stated on the label. Jesus asserts multiple causes of action against the designer and 8 manufacturer of the shirt, Ralph Lauren and Schwab Defendants, and the seller,
9 Macy's, for strict products liability, negligence, breach of warranty and negligent
10 misrepresentation, and his siblings, Marcos and Perla Romero, assert a cause of action 11 for negligent infliction of emotional distress based on a bystander theory. (Dkt. No.
12 17. FAC.)

13 On August 18, 2015, Plaintiffs filed a first amended complaint adding the 14 Schwab Defendants. (Dkt. No. 17.) On November 13, 2015, Tadd Schwab answered
15 the FAC. (Dkt. No. 32.) Answers for the remaining Schwab Defendants were filed on 16 January 14, 2016. (Dkt. Nos. 43-49.) The discovery deadline was extended by the 17 parties' joint motion to December 7, 2016. (Dkt. No. 74.)

18 On June 29, 2016, Defendants Macy's and Ralph Lauren Corporation filed a 19 motion for summary judgment with a hearing date of September 23, 2016. The 20 summary judgment is based on the results of scientific testing on the shirt that revealed 21 the shirt was "in fact, 100% cotton, with only traces of rayon, and that under applicable
22 federal standards, the fabric's weight classifies it as having normal flammability
23 characteristics." (Dkt. No. 66-1 at 6.)

24 On August 23, 2016, Defendants S. Schwab Company, Inc., RL Childrenswear
25 Company, LLC, Sylvia Company, LLC, CUNY Associates, LLC, LM Services, LLC,
26 Tadd Schwab, Samuel Schwab, Douglas Schwab, and Amy Owens ("Schwab 27 Defendants") filed a motion for summary judgment, or in the alternative motion for 28 summary adjudication with a hearing date of September 23, 2016. (Dkt. No. 80.)

1 Schwab Defendants move for summary judgment on the grounds that “Plaintiffs cannot 2 proffer any evidence that the shirt worn by Jesus Romero on the date of the incident
 3 was dangerously flammable thereby causing his injuries . . .there is no evidence
 4 Schwab Defendants manufactured the subject shirt . . . [summary judgment on] Perla
 5 Romero’s and Marcos Romero’s bystander action must be granted because they did not 6 contemporaneously perceive their brother’s injuries were being caused by an alleged 7 defect in the shirt he was wearing on the date of the incident . . .and [summary
 8 judgment as to] Samuel Schwab, Doug Schwab, L. Tadd Schwab and Amy Owens must 9 be granted as to plaintiffs’ entire First Amended Complaint because plaintiffs failed to 10 establish grounds justifying the Court to pierce the corporate veil in order to hold these 11 defendants personally liable.” (Dkt. No. 80 at 2.)

12 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56(d) provides, “[i]f a nonmovant shows by 13 affidavit or declaration that, for specified reasons, it cannot present facts essential to 14 justify its opposition, the court may (1) defer considering the motion or deny it.” Fed.
 15 R. Civ. P. 56(d). “To prevail under . . . Rule [56(d) ], [a] part[y] opposing a motion for 16 summary judgment must make (a) a timely application which (b) specifically identifies 17 (c) relevant information, (d) where there is some basis for believing that the 18 information sought actually exists.” Emp’rs Teamsters Local Nos. 175 & 505 Pension 19 Trust Fund v. Clorox Co., 353 F.3d 1125, 1129 (9th Cir. 2004). The burden is on the 20 party seeking additional discovery to demonstrate Rule 56(d) applies. Blough v.
 21 Holland Realty, Inc., 574 F.3d 1084, 1091 (9th Cir. 2009).

22 Plaintiffs contends that Schwab Defendants’ motion for summary judgment 23 should be denied or deferred because they need to conduct discovery in order to oppose
 24 the motion. Specifically, Plaintiffs argue that contrary to Macy’s and Ralph Lauren’s
 25 motion for summary judgment, Schwab Defendants’ motion involve additional issues 26 which include the design, manufacture, production and sale of the shirt as well as a 27 theory of alter ego liability of the individual Schwab Defendants. There are currently 28 outstanding requests for production of documents to Schwab Defendants that are

1 critical to oppose their summary judgment motion and include, inter alia, production,
2 marketing, safety standards, technical specifications and quality control. (Dkt. No. 82-3 1, Weitz Decl. ¶ 14.) There are also outstanding special interrogatories requesting the 4 names of employees who worked in “various specific areas of the design, manufacture 5 and marketing process, including quality assurance, product testing . . . and 6 shipping/logistics.” (Id. ¶ 15.) Plaintiffs assert that these category of documents have 7 been referenced in other documents produced by Schwab Defendants so the 8 information is likely to exist. Plaintiffs believe that discovery will reveal that the shirt
9 was sold at Macy’s, that Schwab Defendants sold the shirt to Macy’s, and that the shirt
10 is defective. (Id. ¶ 19.)

11 In addition, the depositions of Samuel Schwab, Tadd Schwab and Douglas 12 Schwab, who will testify as to the “entities’ structure, the production process, vendors,
13 product sold to Macy’s and the transition of back to Ralph Lauren after it repurchased 14 its license from the Schwab Defendants,” are currently set on dates after the hearing on 15 summary judgment. (Id. 12.) There is also a pending discovery dispute as to the taking 16 of ten depositions of individuals involved in the designing, product testing and 17 coordination of sales to retail stores like Macy’s. (Id. ¶ 18.) Plaintiffs argue that 18 discovery of facts as to these issues are required to respond to Schwab Defendants’ 19 motion for summary judgment.

20 Schwab Defendants oppose arguing that Plaintiffs do not need additional time 21 or additional discovery to fully respond to the motion because the outstanding 22 discovery has no bearing on the grounds of their motion for summary judgment. In 23 addition, judicial economy warrants that their motion be heard with Macy’s and Ralph 24 Lauren’s motion for summary judgment as they are both based on the same issue.

25 The Court concludes that Plaintiffs have demonstrated that the additional 26 discovery they seek is relevant and may be essential in order to respond to Schwab
27 Defendants’ motion for summary judgment. Unlike Macy’s and Ralph Lauren’s 28 motion for summary judgment which addresses mainly the fabric content of the shirt,

1 Schwab Defendants' motion for summary judgment include additional issues that are 2 currently subject to outstanding discovery requests and discovery disputes.

3 Accordingly, the Court DENIES Plaintiffs' ex parte motion to deny Schwab
4 Defendants' motion for summary judgment and GRANTS Plaintiffs' ex parte motion
5 to continue the hearing date on Schwab Defendants' motion for summary judgment.
6 The Court reschedules the hearing on Schwab Defendants' motion for summary
7 judgment from September 23, 2016 to December 9, 2016 at 1:30 p.m. in Courtroom
8 2D. Any opposition shall be filed on or before November 4, 2016. Any reply shall be 9 filed on or before November 18, 2016.

10 IT IS SO ORDERED.
